

The image features a group of approximately 15 business professionals in silhouette, standing on a high-rise floor with large glass windows. They are engaged in various interactions, such as talking, looking at documents, and standing in small groups. The background shows a dense city skyline with several prominent skyscrapers under a bright, hazy sky. The lighting is warm, suggesting a sunrise or sunset, which creates a strong glow and casts long, dark reflections of the people and buildings onto the polished floor in the foreground. A bright yellow horizontal bar is positioned across the middle of the image, containing the word 'Competition' in a bold, dark blue font.

Competition

Is competition in business Christ-like?

“The true soldier fights not because he hates what is in front of him, but because he loves what is behind him.”

—G.K. Chesterton

- Discipleship is the goal.
  - We are called to set industry standards—not to compete.
- Real entrepreneurs are driven by love ... not anger.
- The “competition” isn’t other companies; it’s the problems of the world.

Examples of Restorative Innovation

- Providing remedies for human illnesses or illiteracy
- Filling gaps in customer service or to help save precious time that people are wasting in their daily lives
- Restoring human dignity where it seems to have been degraded
- Promoting the opportunity to experience greater happiness and fulfillment in life
